

Let them cool.

Get to know your side
of the bridge.

but instead of walking away
from the fire without looking back,
like a badass

we feel a pang of regret.

or maybe, with a bit of help from both sides, it will be stronger than ever.

and we destroy that connection

remember: there are always
other places to build bridges.

Sometimes,
We become tired of someone

HOW to LOVE

Rach writes:

I regret burning a bridge
with someone I like.
What can I do about it?
I want that person back.

It is important not to pick up
the pieces while they are still hot.

In the end,
it may be unsalvageable

Although it may be tempting
to obsess over a single connection

